JUST FOR THE RECORD

"Music is a world within itself. It's a language we all understand." This book is a record of our world of music. Although we could not provide actual music for your page-turning pleasure, there is a unique and unsung song that represents every aspect of Westborough High School life. We believe that it is time to record these songs and in the process, to record this year.

This book is especially for those of us who have trouble remembering what happened two hours ago and will definitely forget some of the more interesting moments and aspects of this high school year very quickly. We have tried to record the more entertaining, and maybe not so memorable, features of our student life, sports, academics, clubs and people with pictures and words. A record should be entertaining. So just for the record . . . THIS was YOUR YEAR!

GOING PLATINUM

It's not what people look like, or what they wear, or even who they hang around with that makes them special. It's what they do, how they react, what they say, and in what they participate that makes them unique people.

That's what this, the first section of our yearbook, is all about. It's we, the students, in our daily lives. It's what we experience, how we react, and how we learn to grow from all that we accomplish.

The activities portrayed in the following pages make us what we are in terms of a student body. Our student life, as a whole, is outstanding; and because of this, our record is going platinum.

Senior Spirit

The dreary weather didn't dampen the spirit of the school's newest senior class as the first "Senior Breakfast" got under way at Abdow's. The class of '86 had just finished school, and we were eager to take over. The waitresses looked toward the door with distressed expressions on their faces as we all plowed in. Everyone crammed into the tables with their friends, and the chowing began. We have to admit, we were a bit rowdy. After the manager proceeded to yell at the whole group, which filled the entire back of the restaurant, students gradually started to leave. Abdow's wasn't thrilled with us to say the least.

On the way back to the school, rotary traffic was held up by soon-to-be seniors. There was even an article about it in the next day's paper! When we arrived, we proceeded to take over the senior balcony as our first demonstration of senior spirit.

Stars on 45's

What could be more fun and entertaining than a live combination of a lot of "Star Search" material and a little bit of the "Gong Show"? Well, the answer is nothing, especially when it is hosted by the Class of 1987.

The evening of March 20, 1986 launched this great and traditional undertaking known as the Junior Talent Show with the help of the three Masters of Ceremony: Sean Linnane, Bruce Ledoux and Chris Gorak. These part-time comedians (and excellent "ad-libbers") added a touch of humor and fun to the show between acts. Included among their most popular material were the antics of Sears Driving School and their accomplished students and an impersonation by Sean Linnane of the lovable but elusive, all-around good-sport, custodian, Fred.

During the course of the show, some of the junior girls found the junior guys to be elusive also, which they expressed in their rendition of "Where'd the Junior Guys Go?" Several of the junior guys were eventually found, however, a little later on stage doing a diaper dance to "You Shook Me All Night Long" and were joined by the girls at the end (who were somewhat more fashionably clothed).

On the more serious side, Johnny, Fish and the Flamingos swept the vocal/band category with an outstanding performance of "Come Sail Away" sung by Brian Karski, who added an interesting flair to the act by starting out in the audience and working his way up to the stage. Joanna Tracy and John Pehl did justice to two Jim Croce songs which they performed like experts, thereby winning the vocal category. In the dancing category, Penny Smith swung and swayed to "The Conga" in keeping with tradition. She shared her victory with Lauren Glickman, Chris Barlow and Stephanie Travers in their spunky routine to the classic hit "Leader of the Pack". Also included was Pete Ralph who did a great job of keeping the motorcycle seat warm and looking cool.

Mark Dirschel and Jodi Brink hooping it up.

Title Track

Junior year is a big year for all high school students. Many things happen that year: SAT's, license, talent show, and that mythical highlight, "THE PROM."

Preparations for such a ceremonious occasion take a great deal of style and tact. Who to ask, and what to wear? After much indecision (and many surprising combinations), dates are found, garments are chosen, reservations are made, and the excitement builds.

Limos, Caddys, sports cars, and Dad's old Chevy rolled in on May 17, 1986 to embark on this "jubilant" occasion. The court was picked, dubbing Heather Cromwell and Matt Day the Royal Couple, forever yours "Faithfully."

Festivities were then moved to the open plains under the starry sky where a warm fire kept us going. The early dawn guided us through hours of traffic on our way to Hampton Beach. The unseasonably hot sun beat down on our tired, and now painfully burned bodies and made us all the more unprepared for school on Monday.

Balcony Games

If it wasn't for our balconies, many of our students would be lost. Most of us depend on these crucial concrete structures as spots for socializing and general support (literally).

Where else could a person make a friend, make a date, make a joke, or just lean in exhaustion for a while? Students even risk "tardies" in order to hang out and look cool for a few minutes between classes, which was especially hard this year with the reduced passing time.

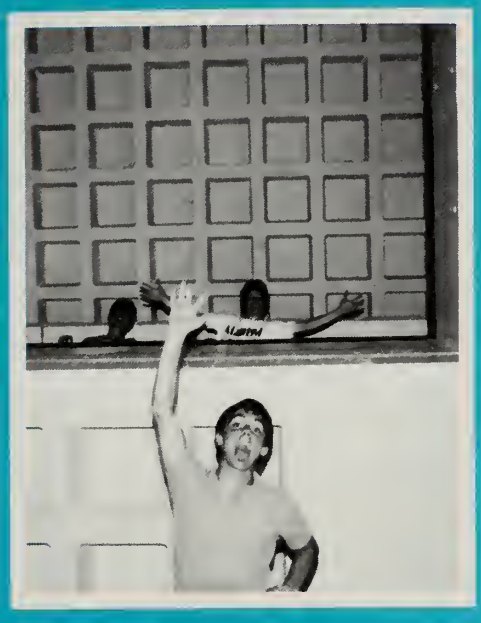
The different levels and locations of the balconies serve to separate class gatherings, the most established being in the infamous senior balcony. This particular balcony is the most annoying when trying to use the stairs because this entails muddling through a sea of seniors.

The balconies add greatly to the character of the school Signs announcing extra-curricular events can be hung here so that all students are sure to see them. These signs express the spirit of the school by congratulating our athletic teams, and anything that brings added spirit to the school is a great advantage.

Mark Montgomery and Dave Coonan take a mental break. Kris Kahler shoots the photographer an evil eye. Mark Hensley wonders what's up.

Bob Crawford and Rob Lanza check out the balcony action in front of room 332.

Ken Valk, Mark Shuman, and Brett Coleman shoot the breeze.



Tim Goland and others above overcome their fear of heights.

Off the Record

The high school has many ways in which it attempts to raise the general morale of the students. Whether it be earning funds, or increasing school spirit or even just getting students together to have a good time, our school likes to think we stick together and give each other support.

In April of 1986 we had a great time at the annual Competition Day. Each grade sent out it's "best" (?) and struggled to win. The final victors were the class of '?8 (who else could it have been but the seniors?).

Later, in June, the class of '87's new yearbook staff held it's carwash. It was a great way to get the new staff together, and we had a blast!

The Long And Winding Road

As soon as teenagers hit high school, and sometimes before, they long for the day when they can drive away in the family car (minus the family). However, to reach this goal, they must experience the trauma of learning how to drive. This process starts with the infamous "driver's ed." For what other reason would sophomores and juniors stay at school, notebooks in hands, for an extra two hours every week for several months, even when it was not a requirement. It's all for that sacred pink slip from the Registry of Motor Vehicles; the result of endless boring hours in the lecture hall.

The most entertaining part of driver's ed is the celebrated road lesson. If you're lucky, your instructor falls asleep in the passenger seat after the first five minutes, or he/she decides that ten minutes is close enough to an hour. If you're unlucky, you get the guy with bad breath who shouts at you constantly about your wheel turning technique and makes you do a three point turn in the rotary. The worst part about it is feeling like the sign on top of the car reads, "That's right. I don't know how to drive." And when people from school pass you on the road, they all stare into the car to see if they know who's driving. Those can be traumatic days, but in the long run, it's worth it. You go for your license, fail the test three times, and on your first solo, you flatten the neighbor's cat. Or is it worth it?

Festivities

(Below)Mrs. Boyle enjoys her role as hostess on December 19.

'Twas the week before holiday vacation and all through the school, every student was smiling, despite the "No Elfing"rule. This year, the administration decided that they had had enough of certain holiday festivities such as "elfing" at the high school. However, the School Committee relented somewhat after a while, knowing that they really couldn't post elf snipers in the halls, and the tradition lived on. Everyone was dressed in their best red and green and gave an atmosphere of holiday cheer to the school. Also, several seniors brought that holiday cheer to the streets of Westboro, despite the pouring rain. You just can't reason with elves sometimes.

Back at the school,the rest of the students were getting involved in the festivities. The foreign language department threw a party (actually a fiesta) hosted by Mrs.Boyle. There were decorations, music, and lots of food.Entertainment was provided by an up and coming magician, Kurt Mosiejczuk, who put on a show that would put David Copperfield to shame. The high point of the party was the wild breaking of the pinata and of course, diving for the candy.

After finishing the "few" last minute tests that our understanding teachers were kind enough to give us,the parties and elfing were a welcome break to people who already had sugarplums dancing in their heads.

Feeding Time At The Zoo

It has long been a tradition among students to complain about school food, but the kitchen staff does the best they can with what they've got. Let's just hope that the saying, "You are what you eat" doesn't hold true at school.

The cafeteria has different moods, which can be unfortunate for some people. For example, the student who either has a headache or needs to study an entire semester of biology in twenty minutes will not appreciate a jubilant chorus of "Happy Birthday to you" from one of the more enthusiastic tables (usually filled with girls). These singers are usually told by a table of football players quite loudly to "SHUT UP!", as they are trying to concentrate on their double lunches. As luck goes, the days when all is quiet on the lunch room front (which is not often) are the days when some poor kid drops his loaded, plastic tray with a resounding BANG in the middle of the floor. Of course, the echo of this humiliation is quickly replaced by the roaring applause of a standing ovation. Sometimes lunch isn't everybody's favorite period.

Let It Snow!

What's the only difference between Westborough and some small hick town in Southern California? You guessed it; that unpredictable white stuff that falls from the sky...Snow. Up to the age of 10, it's a gift from God,a natural toy in which to throw, eat(when its not yellow), romp in, create dream forts, and glide over at 90 miles an hour. After that it takes on a new perspective. It is something which to shovel twice; once before the plow, and the second time after the plow inevitably comes and re-buries one's driveway. Snow is some thing to blow-dry and chisel off the car. It is also a parent's favorite excuse to why one should stay home on Friday night.

When one says "snow" to the average student, the immediate reaction is no school!! Scenario: Forecasters are predicting 5 feet, and one blows everything off and watches T.V. all night only to wake up late and find—-black tar and warm sun.

Then, there are those days when you wake up early, jump in the shower, come out wide awake, refreshed, and one's little sister mumbles "What's the matter with you-no school!". One crawls back into bed - a little damp. It's futile to try and determine whether or not school is actually in session. The radio announcers, it seems, are always on "..and West Boylston". One usually remains clueless till at least 20 minutes before 8:00.

This year we have been particularly blessed with postponements during midyears, leaving us with even more time in which to put off studying ("there are no excuses for failing an exam having 5 days to look over material")-and a white football season. To sum it all up - When You Least Expect It, Expect It!!!

PRACTICES: What Price For Perfection?

We hear it everyday. Mrs. Howland comes over the loud speaker and starts reeling off announcements. "Girls' basketball practice has been changed to 5:00 today. Senior play practice from 7:00 to 10:00; band rehearsal today after school for the concert tomorrow; boys' freshmen basketball will be at the junior high today at 4:00; concert choir rehearsal from 3:00 to..." Sometimes they make your head spin.

One might ask oneself, "Are all these practices really worth the trouble? I mean, heck, I know right now I'll be warming the bench in Friday's game, anyways." As always, the students trample off to their practices, unquestioningly. It's two twenty-two and they haven't eaten since seven thirty when they grabbed a doughnut while running out of the house, claiming that there "wasn't time for breakfast". During lunch, they were too busy cramming for their Biology II 'cat-skinning' test to care much about eating.

Shakin' All Night Long

Dancing is said to be one of the best forms of aerobic exercise. It increases the circulation of blood, tones muscles, and depending on whom you're dancing with, it can make a person lose weight just from the sweat pouring from their palms.

WHS dances, whether they be formal, semi-formal, or the habitual yet madcap "stag bash", rate fairly high on the old student interest-activity meter. D.J.'s spin their records to sell-out crowds, and chaperones do all that they can just to keep the extra multitudes out.

If a passerby was to look beyond the steam-fogged windows of the lobby, he or she might think it was jello wrestling night at Jim's Slam Dance Palace. However, although dances may seem slightly untamed, things are kept well under control by the fearless (and crazy) chaperones. These adults must be given due credit for their time and willingness to lend a hand (or a wastebasket). Our dances are so much more than just a social gathering. They act as an opportunity to unwind, get down, and hopefully (for some) as a chance to get a little closer to some particuar member of the opposite sex.

At such events, students display untapped energy that lasts long after the music stops. By the time the last slow dance is played, the desire for another dance to be scheduled is well implanted in the minds of many. Of course, there are also those people who each time regret coming and swear that they will never go to another dance again. It is true that good times are not guaranteed. The dance provides the opportunity for a good time, and then the dancers have to fend for their own fun. In general, everyone fends pretty well.

WORKIN' FOR A LIVING

Being a student at WHS can get quite expensive. Just the bare necessities, such as music tapes, weekend parties, clothes, dates, food, and cars can add up to enormous sums of money. Not many of us can count on much financial aid from home; parents who are willing to spend up to $45 per achievement test seem strangely reluctant to pass out a whole lot of extra cash on the weekends. Most of us have found other ways to support our lifestyles however. In and around town, WHS students are working at many different jobs to earn money for the essentials of student life.

Some of us have turned to burgers for bucks. Local people can enjoy fast foods at Wendy's produced by Westboro's own Mary Hesselton or Kim Cove. It makes it much easier for everyone to digest their fries and frosties knowing that they were prepared with loving care.

Others have sought jobs at clothing, grocery, shoe, and drug stores. Shopping at CVS is always a treat when one can have Debi Concaugh, Dawn Seibenbruner, Heidi Stewart, Tara LaTraverse, or Jenn Hopkins check out one's deodorant, hair spray, notebooks (of course), and other personal items. Sheila Walsh, Pam Hemberger, Ann Metzger, Allyson Kruse, and Jen Hall work hard to keep Westboro's elementary tots looking fashionable at Raschel's children's clothing warehouse. Late night snacks at Abdow's after a flick at the Flick are pleasantly provided by waitresses such as Amy Burke, Aimee DesRosiers, Laurie Richards, Julie Townsend, and Rita Thacker. These places are obviously only a few where our student body can be found, but these are typical of the types of jobs that teenagers acquire.

After school and summertime jobs have not only provided us with a means of making money but with a chance to have some fun as well. With Westborough youth on the work force, Wendy's drive-thru is an adventure in itself and shopping for zit cream has taken on new meaning at CVS.

Academics

Keeping Records

As much as we hate to admit it, the most important part of school is academics. Everything you do in school goes on a record for every college admissions officer and prospective employer to leer at. Remember that E in College Reading? It's on your record. Goodbye Harvard!

Randall Currie cautiously removes his books from his locker.

When it comes to academics there are two basic personality types. The first is the person who does all his homework, studies for gym tests, and owns stock in the Worcester Public Library. The second type never does homework, and casually glances at their friends' notes for the first time ten minutes before the final. Although these are the extremes, most people tend toward one or the other. The eagerness to graduate provides a common ground enabling both types to overcome differences and party together eight hours after that last bell rings every Friday.

On top of it all.

Day In & Day Out

Students go through their academic life with one point of view: us and the teacher. We who sit in desks mentally calculating our averages, and the person who "struts and frets" all period in front of the class and is totally forgotten during passing time. Do we the students ever stop and think, "What is it like to be up front?"

No, not unless we have to do the dreaded oral report that day. Picture this. You are in the front of a putrid gray room facing ranks of glazed eyes which wander around the room. O.K., perhaps some of these eyes are feverishly reading over the incredibly informative class evacuation plan—hoping for a fire drill. However, most of the eyes stray to the clock and follow the second hand for the bulk of the class. Gathering up some mental strength, you toss out a few questions to the expectant masses. No answer. Maybe they didn't hear. Maybe they really don't know the answer. Maybe they're all looking at the spot on your shirt. Maybe... Time ticks by, notes are taken, never to be understood again, the bell rings and life goes on. Seriously though, the real question isn't the teacher's perspective ,but the students: the delve into the unknown, the unexplored. Well, perhaps it's better left a mystery.

Put Your Goggles On!

For most people, academics is a part of life that they just don't like to advertise. Everyone does it although no one will admit it. With labs however, there is no way to be discreet. Whether you are in the middle of a lab, or have just completed one, you are easily picked out of the crowd. Take for example, the language lab. One can't hide the fact that they are engaged in "academic" lab work, with their big green cushy earphones and long metal mike wrapped around their head. Most students can't deny that they are caught in the act-unless they play it cool and try to pretend they are really tuning out on old-fashioned walkmen.

There is no getting around at least one chemistry or biology lab. They leave you trying to cover up the deep, red goggle mark cut into your face, or with a funny scent of formaldehyde or some sulfuric substance. You try to sneak into your next class subtly, and when the person in front of you turns around and asks you, "Hey, what's that funny smell?", you smile and shrug, "clueless."

A Day In The Life Of JOE RANGER

6:30 BzzzzzzzzWHAP!

6:45 Joe Ranger crawls out of bed and into the shower.

7:20 Joe runs out to the bus stop.

7:30 Joe is still waiting for the bus. It is probably one of the coldest days of the year, so of course the bus is late.

7:50 Joe's bus drops him off at the infamous Westborough High School.

8:00 An alarmingly loud voice blares over the loudspeaker reminding him that it's only Tuesday and a Cycle 1 day at that. Joe mumbles something at the flag and is on his way.

8:40 Joe suppresses a yawn in English class, as he does everyday, longing for the excitement of a rotating schedule.

9:10 Joe sits, vaguely amused, watching another teacher make a fool of himself in his attempts at humor. Joe wonders where this guy gets his clothes. Joe looks at the clock, trying to decide if it's lunch he smells, or biology lab.

10:00 It was biology lab. Joe turns his head just in time to avoid flying worm guts that splat on his partner's goggles. Joe wonders if parameciums ever wonder.

11:00 Study in the cafeteria. It's been a long day already. To make conversation, he asks, "What's for lunch?" A nameless, faceless voice murmurs something to the effect of fried, breaded worm guts. Sigh. He falls asleep to the buzz of distant Walkmans. Zzzzz.

A bell rings. Joe wakes up in a cold sweat and finds himself back in his own bed. It was only a nightmare...or was it? He glances at the clock...6:50AM. He springs out of bed. The nightmare is just beginning.

Ready For The Future

With the newly added seventh period,more students than ever can now take certain classes that help prepare them for what the immediate future entails. Courses such as Home Economics, Senior Survival, and Child Development teach the students the more practical aspects of life that will be necessary for independent living.

Senior Survival has generally in the past gotten a bad rap for being a "sleeze course". Sure, cooking cinnamon rolls for a midyear may not be considered as difficult as a calculus exam. However, learning skills such as cooking and sewing is harder than many people think (or will admit) until they try it themselves.

Next year when some students are out of school and on their own, and all of the buttons are popping off their only shirt, they'll appreciate the extensive training that they received in Senior Survival. When they look into the refrigerator and see nothing except for a few sparse string beans and a can of tomato soup, they'll wish for the exquisite entrees prepared last year in Home Ec. Cooking and sewing are not the only tasks learned in the course.The students are also taught how to hold a budget, balance a checkbook,and wash and iron clothes. As exciting as all this may seem ,the students are learning valuable skills which pertain to the real world.

Child Development is a class taken by many for a variety of reasons. Some sign up to take the course because they are interested in entering into the field of child education; others because they wish to someday be good parents. There are also a few who take it because they enjoy dressing up a hard boiled egg and calling it their baby. Child Development instructs students to understand and get along with kids. That can be helpful to anyone at anytime.

Because of the addition of the seventh period, students are now exposed to new classes which are unique from the three R's: reading ,'riting, and 'rithmatic. Not only do these courses offer instruction on a variety of topics,but they also offer to students a break from the monotonous schooling they may be accustomed to.

The Arts: Try it, You'll Like It!

What is art? What is drama? Are they the titles of some obscure poems from freshman English? Are they perhaps questions that philosophy majors ponder for fun on the weekends? Or are they courses that Westborough High School offers? Yes, that's right, there are students that take these courses here at W.H.S. And strangely enough, contrary to popular opinion, these students work.

Have you ever tried to make a model of an animal out of wire and sticky pieces of paper? Have you ever tried to memorize four pages of dialogue during lunch? That is real work. However, the students that take these classes are very lucky. Not only do they work hard, but they truly enjoy their work (usually). We all have to take science, English, math, history, gym; but these students have chosen to take either art or drama courses. When a student takes a Fine Arts class it's because he wants to, not because he has to.

When you walk by the art rooms or see a drama class in the auditorium, the students and usually the teacher are smiling. Why are they smiling? Well, funny things happen in these classes. Ever wonder why some of the art students have clay stuck to their faces, or stained hands? Ever wonder if Mr. Sharpe actually tells those incredibly inane jokes in drama class? Believe me, you don't know what you're missing. So the next time you're filling out courses to take, either in college or high school, be nice to yourself and round it out with a little art.

OFF THE CHARTS

The following pages contain the many extra-curricular activities our school has to offer. They may be "off the charts" in the sense that they don't go on your report card, but, they are; nonetheless, important. Involvement in clubs provides an ideal opportunity to learn by doing, an experience not available within the constraints of the academic classroom. Or, you may explore an area which isn't included in the academic curriculum, yearbook for example.

At the start of this school year, for many of the traditional clubs the future looked dim. With the addition of the new seventh hour and the abolishment of the activity period, when would organizations have time to meet? Well, loyal club members wouldn't let their clubs die; they just compromised a bit. Often this meant after school get-togethers, or limiting meetings to the bi-monthly activity period. Let it be remembered though that the clubs and organizations of Westborough High School continue to thrive, with or without a daily activity period.

Pressure!

Stress...we've all felt it: that indescribable confusion created when one's mind overrides the body's basic desire to choke the living daylights out of some idiot who desperately needs it.

You know how it is. It's one of those days. You spent all night typing a twenty page paper, and this morning your dog reminds you that you forgot to let him out when he uses your paper in place of his favorite tree. PRESSURE! But your teacher doesn't believe you. Oh, sure, like you drew those huge dark circles under your eyes and overdosed on No-Doze just to fake him out. Nontheless, your teacher is kind enough to give you an E. But wait! That's not all. You completely forgot about your oral report, not that it would have been humanly possible for you to do it anyway. And, of course, it's a major grade. As you feel your hair turn gray and ulcers instantly form on the caffeine-induced knots in your stomach, you try to imagine what it will be like graduating in the 21st century.

Yes, this is a sob story of the average student, but that is exactly what needs to be understood by teachers and parents from time to time. The best student-teacher relationships come from the teacher treating the students as busy people (with other classes besides their own) and not by belittling their roles in life and underestimating their responsibilities. For the most part, teachers understand these things and respect the various pressures on students, and it has to go both ways. Teachers are allowed to also have their sob stories about correcting exams and getting in grades on time, besides going home to being a parent or trying to run a home, pay bills, etc. Better understanding can reduce everyone's pressures.

Student Government

Although most Westborough High students know very little about our student government, it does exist. Our Student Council Officers Jon McSweeney, Kristen McCue, Kirsten Forrest, and Katie Strecker are responsible for the announcement board each week. The student council also provides food during football games in order to raise money for the Student Council Scholarships each year.

SCAT which stands for Students Communicating with the Administration and Teachers, is a group which discusses the problems within our school. (SCAT reps are Tracy LaBrecque, Heather Candon, Caroline Judge, Jen Rochette, Monica Powers, Jon McSweeney, and Rachel Irwin.) SCAT meets once a month with an informal get-together where they discuss ways to improve communications between teachers and students. The SAC to the School Committee presents the ideas and complaints, many times from SCAT, to the School Committee. This year our Student Advisory Council Monica Powers, Tracy LaBrecque, Karen McLaughlin, Shelley Manifold, and Caitlin Moriarity assisted in the formation of our bi-monthly activity period, allowing clubs and activities to meet with greater ease.

The regional SAC Advisory Members, Monica Powers and Jon McSweeney once a month work with committees of other school reps to discuss common ideas or complaints. This year, letters to the senators were written to pass the new School Improvement Council. SIC Reps Jon McSweeney and Jen Berquist are finding ways to improve our school.

Yearbook

"The Producers"

Aimee DesRosiers is apparently not happy with her layout.

At the end of our junior year, we (the editors: Chris Judge, Amy Burke, and Katie Strecker) entered a stage of massive panic upon learning the infamous activity period was to be terminated. Christine and I were certain that this would mean the end of the yearbook. But, luckily our eternally optimistic business editor had the wonderful idea of a yearbook study. Every other day the yearbook staff meets during a regular class hour. It works out well, (we think, anyway) since our staff has the option of coming to the yearbook room if they have yearbook work to do, or attending open study if they have homework to do. The editors also appreciate it since it decreases the amount of time we have to stay after school. Nonetheless, you will often find one of us in room 301 after hours. Have you ever driven by the school late some night and seen a solitary light gleaming out of the corner classroom on the third floor? It simply means that Chris and I (and anyone else we can coerce into staying) are rushing to complete last minute work on our deadline. Granted many people think we're crazy (and maybe we are), we simply hope you appreciate the efforts we, referring to the entire staff, put forth.

Our Own Tunes

Westboro High School is fortunate to have a variety of bands in the music program. The success of these bands—Jazz Band, Concert Band, and Marching Band—is made possible through the hardwork and patience of our Band Director, Mr. Alton Baggett and all the talented musicians at WHS. These bands are a source of entertainment and are real spirit raisers.

This year's Marching Band, led by Drum Major Valerie Smack, had a successful season and was really a lot of fun. The band "made" the football games by playing the familiar tunes of "California" and "On Broadway" in the background. Although half the band were freshmen, and there was only a handful of dedicated seniors, somehow it turned out alright.

The Concert Band, made up of students from every class, now meets every day. The Concert Band puts on a festive Christmas Concert and an excellent Spring Concert each year. The Concert Band members conduct an annual solo and ensemble consert. The extremely talented students who wish to show off for a night participate in this terrific performance.

Another really excellent band is the Jazz Band. It is now an everyday class since there is no longer an activity period. This jazzy group, made up of mostly upperclassmen put on super concerts, as the annual Pops Concert with the Navy Band in June at WHS.

Do Re Mi Fa So La Ti Do

No matter where you are in the school, the familiar humming of a new chorus song for an upcoming concert can be heard. Just for the record, the three singing groups at W.H.S. are: Choral Ensemble, consisting of freshmen and sophomore girls; Mixed Chorus, made up of junior and senior girls and freshmen through senior guys; and Concert Choir, a small group of selected singers from Mixed Chorus.

Every year, the Mixed Chorus travels to another state (or country) to compete in a music festival. They have always returned with a number of medals. Each spring, the Concert Choir puts on a Madrigal Dinner where singers in Medieval costumes entertain guests while dining. The Choral Ensemble has the distinction of opening the winter and spring concerts held each year. These concerts provide a full evening of singing entertainment that is enjoyed by parents and friends.

AFS Trip #1 Mary Hesselton Down Under

Mary Hesselton, class of 1987, went to school during her summer vacation. Through AFS, she went to Canberra, Australia, where the kangaroos roam. "Their school system is different from ours. There is a creative energy contributed by most of the students. It's more of a relaxed atmosphere." She stated how the schools worked on an open campus basis, much like the colleges in the United States. The city itself is not polluted or overpopulated, a nice change from the U.S. In her free time she went to parks, saw some of the Australian culture, and learned to ski. All the way to sunny Australia just to go skiing?

AFS Trip #2: Joanna Tracy In The Great White North

Joanna Tracy, class of 1987, spent her summer vacation in a very unlikely place Iceland. Joanna was an exchange student through American Field Service, which took her to a sixty acre dairy farm called Keta. She lived with a family consisting of three girls and one boy. They are a hard working, farm oriented family. "The jobs on the farm were many and never ending. Milking thirty four cows at 7:00am and 6:00pm, shearing sheep and heading them to the mountains for the summer took a week." The work would go well into the night since the sun only set for three hours maximum, so it was never very dark. Their eating habits are different since they eat four meals a day. Lamb is a very popular meal and, as a special, whale meat is served. Milk is fresh from the cow. All in all she had a good trip, despite a language barrier. "I'm glad I got the opportunity to go to Iceland."

BREAKING RECORDS

It may be true that certain teams' favorite slogans are lines like "It's not whether you win or lose; it's how you play the game." Of course, these teams are usually the ones that do not win as often as they would like. However, winning is far from everything. There are sports records to break that deal with things other than victories and championships.

Well-balanced punter Paul Bielski goes to work.

Being a member of a team is one of the best opportunities to start new friendships. When a group of people work together for a few months out of the year, sharing common goals and interests, new friends just come naturally. There are inevitable good times and laughs at practices and on bus rides. In addition to the fun aspect, playing a sport is an excellent way to feel good about yourself and your achievements. It is a chance to set new goals and break your own personal records.

Football

Rebuilding the Forces

The 1986 Ranger football team was highlighted with a 3-0 record in all of their Non-League games as well as a very exciting win at Clinton in our school's first night game in 21 years.

Although they ended up the season with a disappointing loss to our arch-rivals, the Algonquin Tomahawks, the year was filled with many moments that Westborough can be proud of.

Leading the 21 senior players were captains Steve Tepper and "Pudge" O'Keefe, who were considered by many to be as good in their respective positions as any in Central Massachusetts.

Although the Rangers couldn't quite pull it all together this year, there were talented players in every position, and the forces are gradually being rebuilt for another soon-to-come Superbowl Championship. The team would like to thank Coach Gebo and all agreed that Coach Bliss was an excellent and entertaining addition to the team.

As for the JV team, due to a technicality, their record was discounted. If the games had counted, their record would have been 3-5-2, as shown, but unfortunately, it resulted that they only won one game, and lost the rest.

CHEERLEADERS

It's Hip To Be Bop

Cute girls in short skirts; it's enough to make any crowd scream. However, our W.H.S. cheering squad is a lot more than a group of slender-legged chicks. They're a spunky bunch who's energy and spirit leads the Ranger fans through disappointing losses and glorious victories. The gang is lead by Lori Colwell, who has the girls up and flexing at 8:30 every Saturday morning. They practice forming the difficult geometric shapes and take pride in performing in near perfect unison. Let's face it, without them we spectators would be just another shouting horde of adolescents. Their capers provide for never a dull moment that keeps the Ranger fans quite amused.

Field Hockey

Midland League Champs

The field hockey season started off the year with a big victory over Maynard for the first time in six years. The next two games were ties, but from then on, the victories started, even with some key players warming the bench in Hudson. Occasionally, the team celebrated victories with a "sleeze" practice the next day, including ice cream and games like "Red Rover", until this became too hazardous.

The team's undefeated record continued with the help of Megan Fay, who played goalie in place of Mary Beth Domenico against Clinton. The victories ended with the disappointing Milford night game when new playing conditions worked against the team (especially Jen!). The team never lost spirit, and they finished off the season with several wins to become the Midland League Champs. The team lost a tough first Districts game, but if next year's team is like this one, they'll be back.

Boys' Soccer

Almost There

The 1986 Varsity soccer team, led by tri-captains Craig Martin, Chad Christie, and Chris Wheelock placed 3rd in the Midland League and missed Districts by only one game.

1986 also was the year of Westboro soccer's first night game, in which they beat Shrewsbury 4-1.

Westboro was clearly a defensive team with Brian Nash, Rob True, Carl Joeckel, and Chad Christie as fullbacks, and with Paul Martino in net. At times the Westboro offense was explosive with Jon Steen as goal leader. A serious injury prevented senior captain Craig Martin from playing in 6 games which deeply hurt the team.

The seniors would like to thank Coach Kent for making their final year a memorable one, and thanks to Coach Tetloe for his time and contributions.

Girls' Soccer

Low in Score, High in Spirit

It was another year of hard work for the girls' soccer team who may have only won one game, but had several near misses. It did not help any that several key players were lost to sickness and injury over the season. Their record, however, was strong enough to beat out Hudson and to take fifth place in the Midland League.

The team, led by captains Karen McLaughlin and Jean Pierson, was an odd combination of veterans and newcomers. Throughout the season, Westborough played mostly a defensive game, which was strengthened by Jean Pierson at sweeper and stopper Monica Powers, a first year player who used her athletic talents to become a dominant force in our defense. In goal was another newcomer, Erika Reents, who played well for the team. Senior Dawn Seibenbruner was an indispensible fullback, along with Shannon Seile (when she could make it through a game without falling down).

The midfield was held down by Karen McLaughlin, who not only supported the defense but was this year's lead scorer. Kathy "Legs" Cullen and Amy Cox, who was sidelined towards the end of the season due to illness(?). Freshmen stand-outs were Allyson Morse and Chris Norkevicius, who kept alive the age-old tradition of scoring on the wrong net.

The team would like to thank Mr. John Lowbridge and Mr. John Hayes for their unfaltering guidance and their dedication to the team. Thanks also to the Westborough Soccer Association for their financial support throughout the season.

Boys' Cross Country

They're Still Standing

This year's boys' cross-country team had a tremendous amount of energy and promise. The most memorable event of the season took place at the meet against Hopkinton, when captains Mark Stevens and Tim Goland led the team into victory by taking the first six places. Although the Hopkinton meet was their only win of the season, it will not be forgotten by Westborough's own. This year's team has displayed a great deal of effort and potential, particulary on the part of freshmen members such as Brad Masters, Joe Miller and Casey Aylward. While their record was not a good one, the season was a lot of fun and now that Pete McClymer has learned the courses, he is looking forward to becoming captain next year. Best of luck to the boys' cross country team next year, you guys deserve it!

Girls' Cross Country

Ghost Runners

The girls' cross country team had a super season this year. The team ended with a very respectable record and placed well in league meets and districts.

The team interwove lots of fun, such as Coach Doyle's "prize day," with many hard uphill miles. Senior Donna Straight, Juniors Sam Brown, Kate Thomas, Katie Cox and Betsy Stone, along with talented freshmen all placed well in their meets. Their efforts contributed to many wins. Sue Batcheller, Lynn Straight, and Nancy Perks all improved greatly over the season.

Debbie Powell and Laurie Lightbody ran and cheered together all year, and on Halloween led the pack of masked ghost-runners trick-or-treating through Westboro. With this spirit and talent, the team had a great season this year and can look forward to another next year.

Volleyball

A Lot of Talent & A Little Luck

The 1986 volleyball team was undoubtedly a team of personality. Although several players had to serve time in detention hall, the team and Miss Corcoran managed a 10-4 record, placing them second in the league, and qualifying them for districts for the first time in four years. Many interesting and unique experiences added to the character of the season. The grand finale was their only district game, where they scored more points but ended up losing the match three games to two to Newton Catholic. As a show of their good sportsmanship, the team members decided not to ask for the bus shift back, but instead cruised home with Mom and Dad.

Miss McSweeney and the JV team showed fine spirit and had some very promising players. Although next year's team is sure to do well, the intensity and domination will not be the same without the character of the departing seniors and ringleaders: Sheila Walsh (MVP) and Joanna Tracy (co-captains), Robyn Alie, Jen Hall, Mary Hesselton, Sue Gillis, Tracy LaBrecque, and Cheryl Rich.

Kara Fitzpatrick crouches in serving position.

Gymnastics

Hanging In There

The gymnastics team was an unusually small team this year, which made it difficult for the girls to compete against the larger teams in their league. Individually, however, everyone on the team improved considerably from last year with the help of two new coaches, Noreen Johnson and Liz MacDougall.

The team may not have won any meets as of yet, but they certainly kept doing their best and kept their spirits up at the same time. There were plenty of laughs during "girl talks" with coaches Noreen and Liz. Favorite team pasttimes were impromptu runs through the McDonald's drive-thru whenever possible (before, during, and after practices or meets!) and playing with colorforms. The year wasn't all fun and games of course. The coaches kept the team busy in the weight room, and as a result, all of our WHS gymnasts agree: "We may not be the best team, but we've got to be the strongest."

Ice Hockey

The Main Attraction

When you think of the Westboro High School hockey team, you immediately think of a bunch of great guys playing hockey in a way which is exciting to both the fans and the players themselves. It isn't until you walk into North Star that the realization hits you that you're stuck in a cigar-smelling, freezing rink for the next two hours with a bunch of other screaming fans.

It's a bit confusing at first. The puck moves so fast it's hard to know who's in possession of it-if anyone. Unless the players stand at the exact angle so that you can read both the name and number off their shirts, it's pretty tough figuring out who's who. Sometimes, it seems as if the best part of the game is when Zamboni comes out to clean the ice.

Karl Johnson, Steve Tepper, and Kevin Grant led the victorious team to districts and states. Even with such great leadership, the team wasn't just a bunch of individuals, but rather a group of athletes striving for team unity.

The hockey team would like to thank the fans for all of their amazing spirit and support. They would also like to say thanks to Coach Shilalie and the coaching staff for all the good times that they had throughout the season.

Girls' Basketball

Better Than Ever

For the first time in a long time, the girls' basketball team went to Districts. The 1986-87 team was a group with an abundance of talent and an abundance of individual personalities who, for the most part, got along really well together. Co-captains were Megan Fay, Monica Powers, and Chris Judge (Juez), who kept the team morale up with impromptu spirit-raisers like Megan's spontaneous break dance circle at practice. The favorite team pasttime was the celebrated busride sing-a-long (when we weren't threatened by our bus driver). Another favorite pasttime was seeing who would bring the wrong colored shirt to the games. There was always at least one person who either had only one sneaker(Kim) , or no sneakers(Megan), or the wrong shirt(Erika "Reek" Reents). Although the Rangers might not have been the most fashionable team on the court, they were usually the best.

Team centers/forwards and key rebounders were the tall and tenacious Megan Fay and Kim McLean. Forwards under the hoop included the talented juniors Rachel Ballard, Heather "Hez" Candon, and Kerry Matthews. At guard/forward position were the fiesty Erika Reents and freshman bullseye-shooter Jen Gorak. Monica "Tasmanian Devil" and "Reach In" Powers brought the ball up the court as the team's fast-moving point guard with back-ups from Jody Thurber and Judy Bond. Congratulations to Coach Young and a team of good friends and good athletes.

Congratulations also to a super JV season. Mr. Mongeau's team unfortunately broke a long-time no-loss tradition but remained the same great quality team that Mr. Mongeau is used to. Co-captains were Lori Riedel, Kate Whitin, and Amy McAuliffe. Good luck next year to the future varsity team.

Boys' Basketball

Close But No Cigar

The 1986-87 Varsity Boys' Hoop season wasn't as rewarding as the Rangers were expecting. Despite a number of close games, the team shared many good times. Senior leadership included Co-captains Chris "19'9"" Gorak, and Keith "The Butler" Taylor, and Karl "Yokel" Joeckel, with help from Brian "jello" Chouinard. When perusing talent for next year, one must not overlook the abilities of Chris "Pearl" Devaux, Mike "Roons" Burns, Jeff "Top Gun" Galicki, Matt "Lead" Tuttle, Dave "Fake Shot" Awad and Paul "Janna" Jankauskas.

Some of the seasons more memorable events were when Carl Joeckel told the Coach, after he had left the room for a minute, that they had shot the eight free throws in a row which they were supposed to. Another highlight was Keith Taylor's half court "Hail Mary" shot in the Holy Name game. This year was not an unsuccessful year for the Rangers in terms of talent, but luck just didn't seem to be on their side. Good luck to next year's team!

Congratulations to the JV team who were Midland League Champs this year!!

PERSONAL RECORDS

This section of our record acknowledges the people that make our record unique. Different schools may have the same types of sports teams, clubs, or student activities, but the wide variety of people and personalities at this school insure that this record is one of a kind.

Therefore, the pages that follow are this years' personal records of WHS. Meet the latest arrivals to our new administration and faculty, and find out more about a few of our "newer" teachers through our exclusive interviews. If you seek even more excitement, turn to the student pictures. Find your own, circle all your friends, and cross out your enemies. It's your book. Also, the senior section offers a chance to take a good look at some faces that will not be around next year. Finally, just for fun try to interpret a senior grid, or look for your initials in someone else's. If they're not there, put them in yourself. Remember, it's your book.

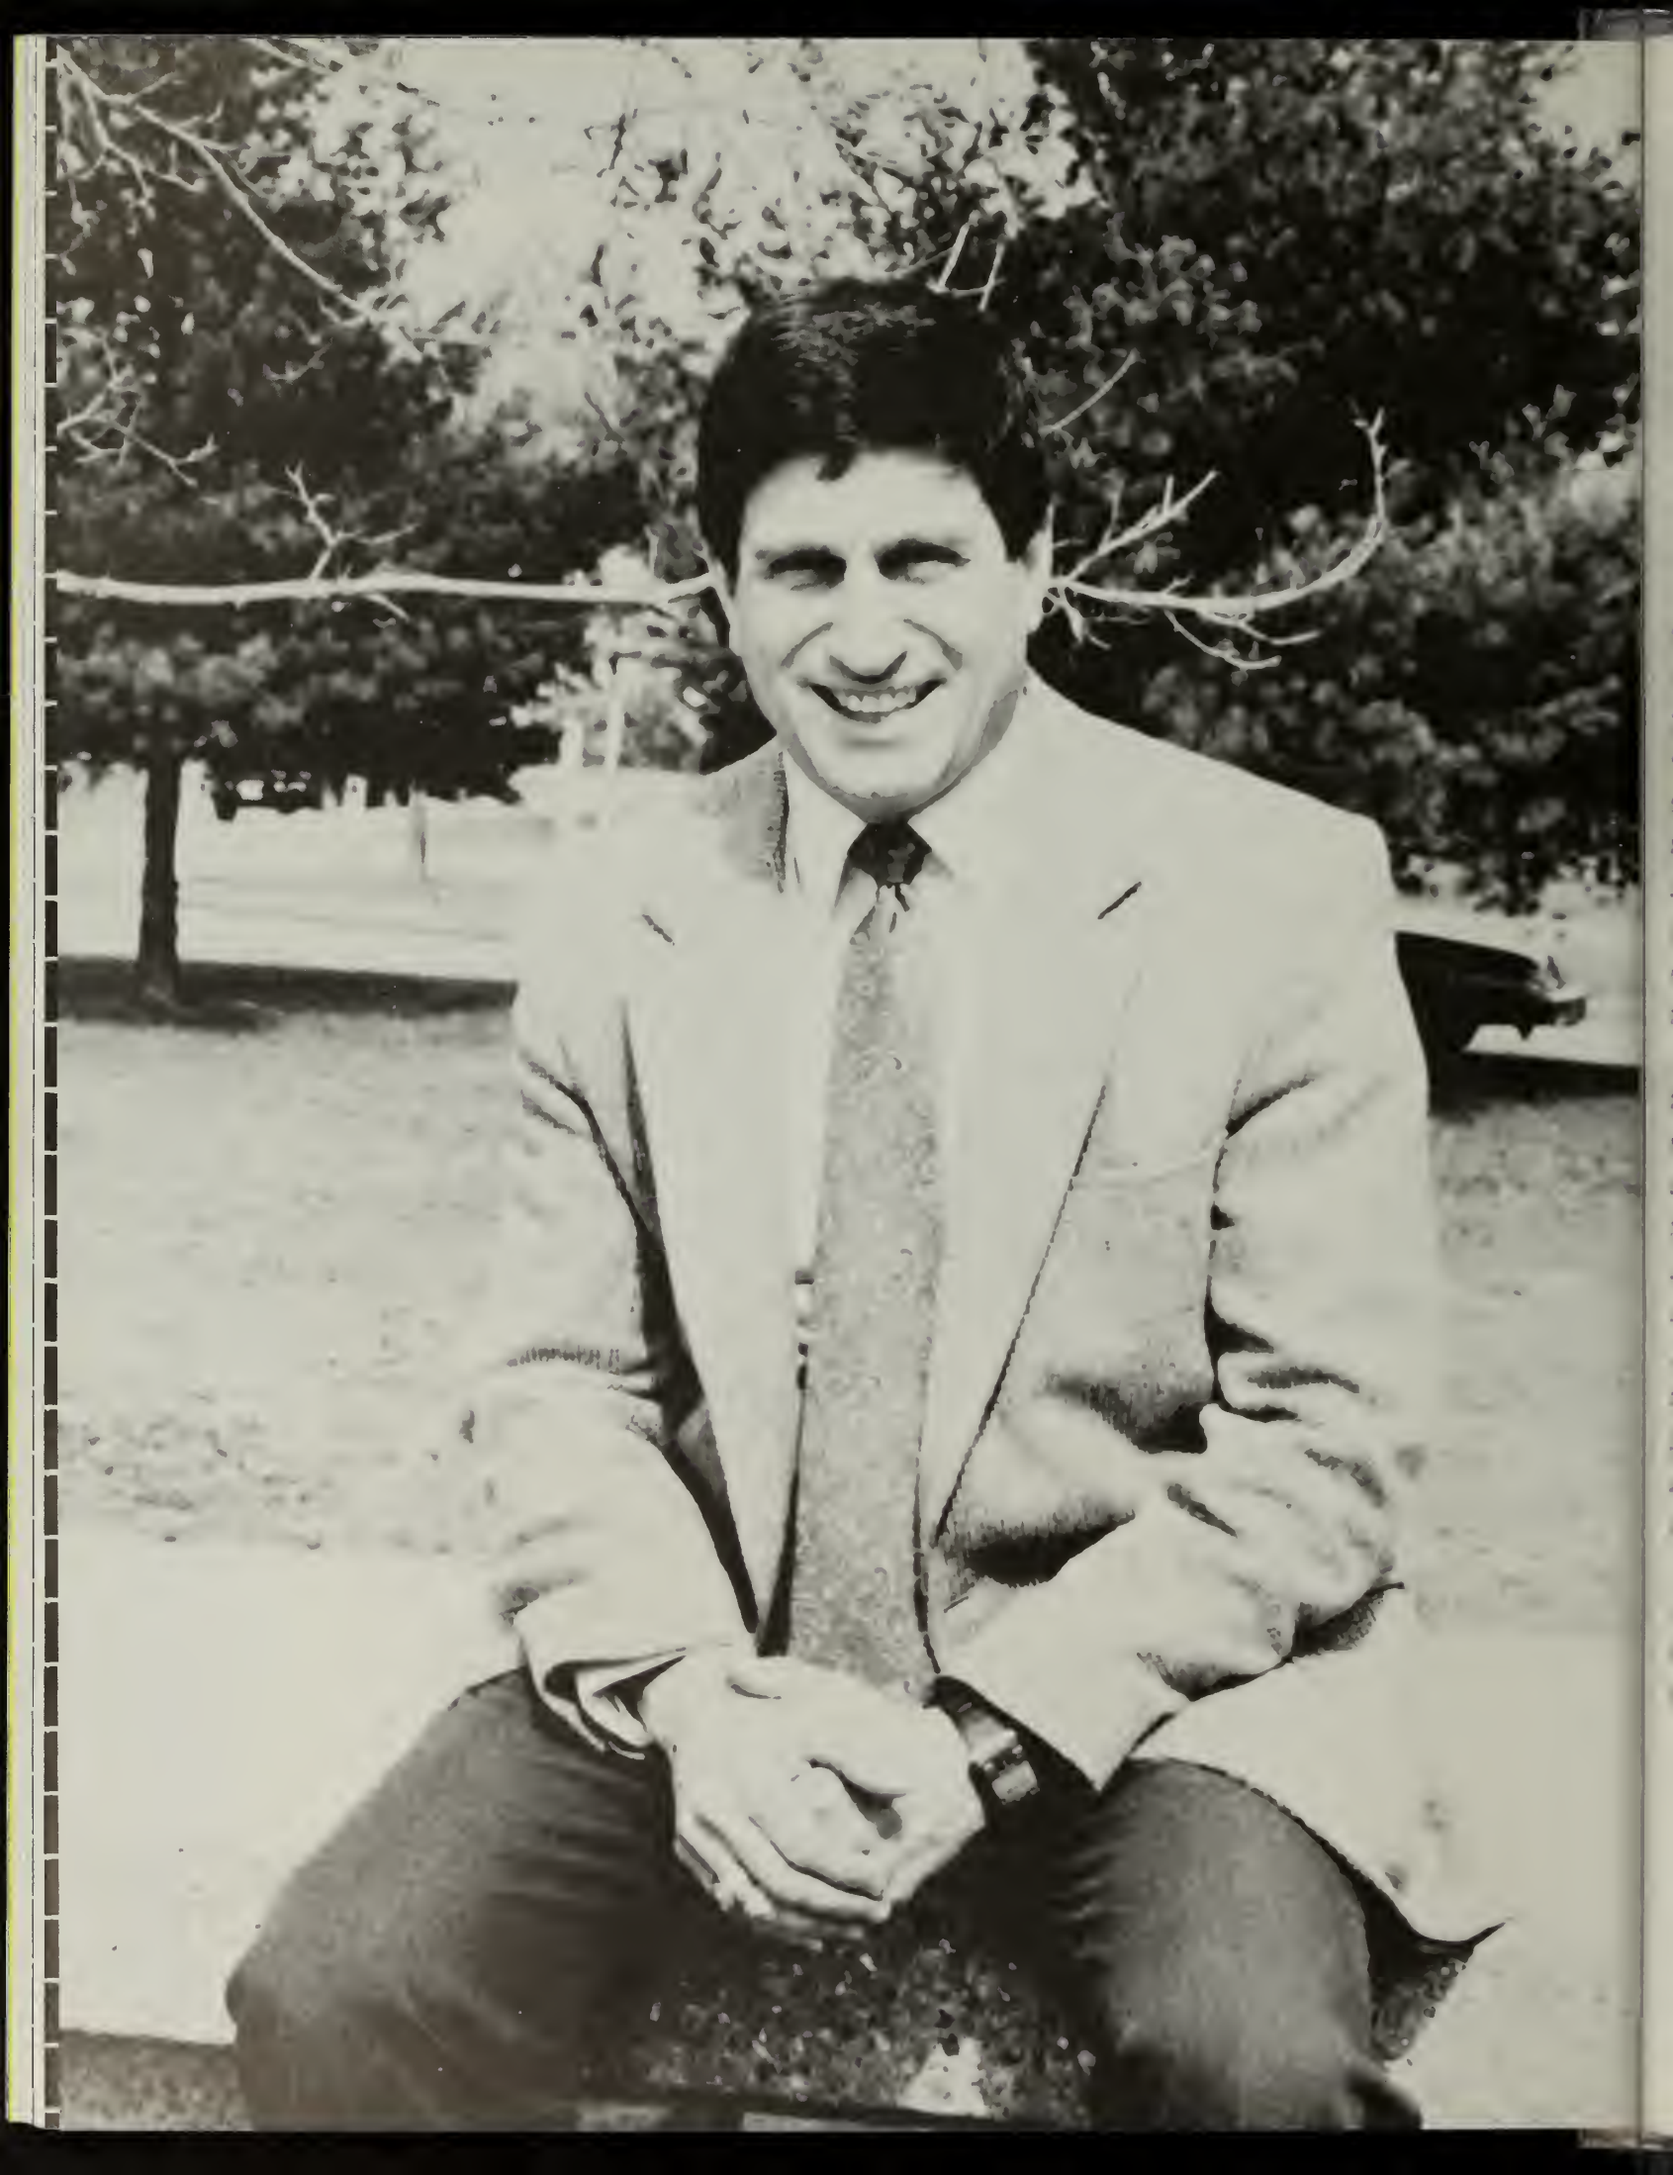
PROPERTY OF

WESTBOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL



Dedication

Mr. Mewhiney

On behalf of the Class of 1987, the Yearbook Staff would like to dedicate this book to Mr. Joseph R. Mewhiney. For twenty-five years, he has been more than an athletic director and an assistant principal. He has been a loyal friend to us all; an administrative adult that people feel they can approach and talk to. Through his years of dedication to Westborough High School, Joe Mewhiney has been a key figure in boosting and maintaining the spirit and morale of our school.

Mr. Mewhiney's commitment to his position as athletic director has led him to win many awards. Just this year, he was awarded the Central Massachusetts Athletic Director of the Year award. Mr. Mewhiney has always been respected by teachers and students alike. Recently, he gave up his job as Athletic Director in order to put all of his time and effort into being Assistant Principal. His humble devotion has been greatly appreciated by everyone—especially the senior class.

Once again, we would like to thank you, Mr. Mewhiney, for all of the hard work and time that you've put into helping us through our high school years.

Love,
The Class of 1987

The New Administration

Meet Dr. Holland

Since this is his first year here, we thought it would be interesting to interview Dr. William Holland, the new Superintendent of Schools. Two members of the Yearbook Staff asked Dr. Holland about his various reactions and opinions of Westboro.

YB: What were your reactions to Westboro when you first came here? Were you in any ways surprised or disappointed?
WH: Westboro was everything I expected. I haven't been surprised or disappointed. My experience has prepared me. I was Superintendent in Narragansett as well as Lunenberg. I was Assistant Superintendent in Dartmouth and School Administrator in Newton.

People are extremely appreciative of service here. This is not true everywhere. They hold high expectations. Teachers here are highly professional. They're part of an excellent tradition.

One disappointment has been the weather. I was expecting a more severe winter.

YB: What do you do in your leisure time?
WH: I have very little leisure time. I'm a superintendent, a father, and a husband. I used to enjoy nautilus, but lately I jog and go for walks with my wife to relax. I'm an avid golfer, but I haven't played much lately. I also do a lot of reading.

YB: What is your favorite movie?
WH: I liked "Gone with the Wind" and a movie that didn't get enough recognition, "The Color Purple." I also enjoy Disney movies. "Song of the South" brought back many childhood memories.

YB: What do you think of the school food?
WH: I can't comment on the food—I haven't had the opportunity to sample it to a great degree. I like the tacos at Hastings, though...and I like the Fales' pizza.

YB: How do you like the High School's physical appearance, in general?
WH: The High School's physical appearance is a strength. It's clean. There's a sense of pride. Smoking leaves its mark, but it could be worse...or better. The school has a sense of warmth. On a scale of one ten, the school has an appearance of about a seven. We can make it nicer and more aesthetically beautiful.

YB: Here's a thought question for you... "Do you do your superintendent duties in accordance with your daily horoscope?"
WH: No, I don't. At times, I might be accused of it. Probably I should ponder that as a new approach. When all else fails, I'll use that tactic. I was born on April 20 — that's on the cusp between Taurus and Aries.

YB: What would you do at a yellow light?
WH: Now, I would stop because I learn from my mistakes. I'm very cautious in terms of traffic. It scares me to death to know that people think they know what they're doing when they drink and drive. It only takes one mistake.

YB: Who is your favorite group or singer?
WH: I like the creative genius of Lionel Richie.

Maureen Zolubos—Principal

Members of the Class of 1987:

Four years of high school are over. For some of you, they have been the best; for others, they have been the worst. I have only known you for this one year at Westborough High School; your last and my first.

From the opening assembly on September 9, 1986, at the beginning of the school year, I knew that the class of '87 would be special to me. You will always by my first class to graduate from Westborough High School.

The future stretches before you, uncertain but hopeful. There can be no sadness now. The Senior year is a time of anticipation of things to come, and then goodbyes. Congratulations to each of you.

Sincerely,
Maureen H. Zolubos

The School Committee(Front Row) Karen Ingerman, Sheila Cizauskas, Joan Bentley. (Back Row) Dennis O'Neil, Donna Whiteside, J.J. Malone.

Joe Mewhiney—Assistant Principal

To the Class of 1987:

It has been a pleasure to work with all of you over the past four years. Your days in high school pass by very quickly, and now you will step out into the world. You will be on your own for the first time.

There are so many great things to do, see, and accomplish! Take advantage of everything that is offered, and particularly, never stop learning.

Good Luck to All,
Coach Mewhiney

William Walsh—Athletic Director

Faculty

Too often, students misunderstand the lives of their teachers. Why does it always shock someone who sees an adult from school at a football game in jeans, sitting with his or her three kids, looking like a parent. It is hard to picture them anywhere but in front of a classroom, wearing "teacher clothes." Many students can not grasp that the faculty do not sleep overnight at their desks and that they eat food that comes from places besides the cafeteria. It is important to realize that these peoples' lives do not revolve totally around the school and that they have their unique styles and interests.

To illustrate this point, and in keeping with the theme of the book, the yearbook staff has taken a poll of the teachers' favorite tunes, since music is such a big part of personal style and taste. Hopefully, this will change the image of the WHS staff member as being a permanent fixture of the school's corridors. Under each teacher's name, we have given his or her favorite album or artist. You can tell a lot about a person by the kind of music he or she likes, as you will see.

Mrs. Gore

Loving the Small Town Life

Mrs. Wendy Gore has been a member of the Westborough High School faculty for two years now, and is enjoying her job. Prior to Westborough, she taught high school in such places as Canada, Boston, and New York, and has also graced the faculty roster at several junior colleges. Thus, she has had experience at a variety of levels and in several environments. The suburban area and small size of WHS make it the most desirable location for her. She prefers a school which is not overly crowded or confusing!

Mrs. Gore does find gratification in teaching, but, as with any job, there are frustrations. She recalls one experience which occurred during her first year of teaching. In the midst of conjugating Spanish verbs she noticed one of her students had completely lost interest: he had fallen asleep. When Mrs. Gore politely asked another student to wake him up, he, just as politely replied, "You put him to sleep; you wake him up."

Mr. Vital

Computer's Newest Cool Guy

Mr. Paul Vital joined the Westboro High teaching force in 1984 and proceeded to not only mesmerize students with his computer knowledge but to also pass much on to those willing to meet the challenge.

Born and raised in Massachusetts, Mr. Vital attended Bridgewater State and North Eastern University, where he earned his undergraduate and graduate degrees, respectively. His graduate fellowship was received from Louisiana State University. Before coming here, Mr. Vital taught in several other Massachusett towns as well as at the American Embassy School in Bolivia, South America. Surprisingly enough, he also used to teach courses in history, sociology and economics.

Mr. Vital regards Westboro's computer department highly and finds the faculty and students to be 'top-flight'. Anyone who has ever taken a computer class can verify that it can quickly give you high blood pressure, but Mr. Vital always seems to keep his cool. Mr. Vital definitely adds to the quality of this school.

SENIORS: Breaking Traditions

There can be no doubt that the Class of 1987 is a unique one. Therefore, we felt that the senior section of this yearbook should be unique; breaking the mold of past years. It's always hard for people to accept change, but we have taken the risk this year because we think it is an improvement. We have added some new superlatives and killed off some previous ones, and the superlatives have also been cleverly interwoven into the section. It is true that grids have been shortened slightly, but this allows for a different look: the "1987 look." Isn't that special?

Besides all of this, something has been done in this book that has never been done before(at least not in Westboro). We have expanded the senior class picture onto a three page fold-out! You've gotta love it!

Samir Sohail I was born in March of 1969. Saudi Arabia is my birth place, where I went to school for 12 years. I wanted more change in my life, so I moved to America. Last two years of my life are totaly different from the sixteen years I have spent in Arabia. My thinking is that every thing out there is for me. I just have to get it by struggling hard, and thats what I came here for-and that is what I will get!

To the Class of 1987:
Over the years it has been our friendships that have kept us going. Although they change from time to time, they are in every capacity one of the most valuable things we leave with. And so we toast: To good times and good friends!

Amy & Chris: "Being a yearbook editor has been a learning experience. We all learn from our mistakes!" (just kidding Bob!)

Katie: "I walk down the hall and people throw money at me. I only wish I could spend it at Neiman-Marcus rather than Herff Jones."

A yearbook advisors most important job is to choose "super" editors — and I have —

Dear Smelly Shelley,
All the miles driven through town,
all the clothes lost and found,
All the places we've discovered,
all the memories we've shared together.
We're leaving now but not for long,
soon to be back to continue on!
WE LOVE YOU! Tracy and Debi
